About Airgas

Founded in 1982, Airgas has long been defined by its entrepreneurial spirit. Our diverse company is powered by 18,000 hard-working associates, dedicated to customer success in the following industries:

- Manufacturing and metal fabrication
- Construction
- Energy and chemicals
- Life sciences and healthcare
- Food, beverage and retail services
- Materials and power
- Government, defense and aerospace

Through 500+ acquisitions and internal growth, Airgas has established a national footprint with locations across the U.S., bolstered by the global presence of our parent company, Air Liquide. Headquartered in Radnor, Pennsylvania, the Airgas network is comprised of more than 900 retail locations in addition to cylinder fill plants, gas production facilities, specialty gas laboratories and regional distribution centers. All of this allows Airgas to deliver the right mix of gases, welding and safety products, and unbeatable expertise — all in one place.

Your career journey

Airgas is a great place to drive! Our team of over 6,000 drivers are the backbone of our company and the face of Airgas to our more than one million customers every day. Our fleet, the 17th largest in the country, is made up of regional, route, local, bulk, and MicroBulk drivers, and includes Class A, Class B, and Hazmat positions. Airgas is committed to supporting our team of dedicated drivers who are recognized year after year for operational safety excellence by customers, suppliers, and organizations including the Compressed Gas Association.

With an unwavering commitment to safety and customer service, our drivers take on every challenge and find the best way to meet their customers' needs.

Minimum driving requirements

- Must possess Class A CDL
- Must have tanker and hazardous materials endorsements
- 1+ year(s) driving a tractor trailer equivalent

Airgas, an Air Liquide company, is one of the leading U.S. suppliers of industrial, medical and specialty gases, as well as hardgoods and related products; and one of the largest U.S. suppliers of safety products.
